SCHOOLS & COMMUNITIES FIRST

- Closes property tax loopholes benefiting wealthy corporations.
- Cuts small business taxes.
- Reclaims billions every year to invest in our schools and local communities.
- Exempts homeowners, renters, small businesses and agricultural land so they continue to be protected by Prop 13.
- Prioritizes transparency and accountability by requiring public disclosure of all new revenues and how they are spent.
- Just 10% of California's most expensive nonresidential commercial properties account for 92% of Prop 15's loophole-closing revenues.

NO ON PROP 22

A BUSINESS MODEL BASED ON THREATS, SHUTDOWNS, AND EXPLOITATION

- Creates a loophole in existing law just for app-based companies to continue exploiting their workers for profit.
- Lets app companies boost their profits by refusing to provide their drivers with the benefits required under current law like paid sick leave, unemployment insurance, or healthcare.
- Prop 22 waters down existing protections for workers against harassment and discrimination, and eliminates required sexual harassment training as well as the obligations on Uber and Lyft to investigate both customers' and drivers' harassment claims.

SPEAKING GRIEF

Saturday, October 24 at 4 PM

Hospice of Humboldt and KEET-TV invite you to a free ONLINE screening of the documentary Speaking Grief, which explores the transformative experience of loss in a society that avoids the expression of sorrow.

After the film, Dr. Gina Belton with Redwood Palliative Psychology will facilitate conversations with participants exploring how grief is a universal yet individual experience. She will support you with discovering your path through this process.

'The Very Least We Could Do'

Editor:

I agree with Fhyre Phoenix's suggestion about offering refuge to people who are living with an intolerable degree of smoke (Mailbox, Oct. 8). We here on the coast are so lucky. Our air quality is much better than the air inland. We should be doing something to help. At the very least we could offer free camping. The large area between U.S. Highway 101 and the ocean just south of Orick used to be available for campers for free. The county should permit that again. Contact your supervisor.

Martha Walden, Westhaven

'Be Kind'

Editor:

I am feeling a deep sense of grief for our country ("A Plea for Understanding," Oct. 15). We should be more civilized and evolved than this. We are living in a realm where there are differences. Differences of beliefs. Differences of cultures. A blend of water and oil living together in one big melting pot.

The earth sustains us, deserving our utmost respect and stewardship. Denying this is denying the future of those who will be here long after we have become dust.

Extinction of species is a prelude for what will ultimately come. Our waters are becoming a cesspool of plastics and toxins fill the air endangering all the living.

When it comes to politics I feel like a child of a bitter divorce, caught in the middle with polarized parents. Lies and power struggles have reached a level of overwhelming discord. A war brews between leaders who have lost sight of their purpose.

There is no doubt our government needs a major overhaul. Our constitution necessitates fine tuning to fit these modern times, politicians should take a moderate stance inclusive of all, campaign spending requires reform so allegiance lies with the people and not with those intending favors. It's sinful the amount of money spent on campaigns when the needs are so great.

Mr. Rogers said: "There are three ways to ultimate success: The first way is to be kind. The second way is to be kind. The third way is to be kind."

No one is perfect yet our present Commander in Chief fails to embrace this concept at all. His rhetoric has become dangerously toxic. He needs to move on.

Let us try to accept each other's differences and honor them in a way that presents a compromising, peaceful reality of what it means to be united.

Mairead Dodd, Eureka

'Concerned'

Editor:

There have been various worries relating to voting but I am concerned about the efficiency of our county elections office ("Pandelection," Oct. 1). Months before the primary, I went, in person, to the election department's office, filled out the required paperwork to change from Republican to no party preference, turned it in and was assured that was all I needed to do. However, come the primary, I received only the Republican version. I waited a while to contact the election department. In the past, I had to answer phones for various offices and departments, so I make it a priority to always be friendly to whomever is stuck answering the phone. I posed the lack of my registration not being changed as a puzzle rather than complaint, abruptly I was told I could do it myself on the computer. So I did and it is changed now, but I do wonder why the paperwork I turned in didn't get processed. Also people should be aware that not everyone has a computer or smartphone and some areas don't have broadband anyway.

Joan Collier, Eureka

CELEBRATING LOCAL HISTORY

The Oil Derrick Capetown, circa 1908

Oil was first discovered around the same time on the east and west coasts in the mid 1800s, but the more settled and established state of Pennsylvania had the advantage. The wild west was, after all, still very wild and even more so in Humboldt where some of the first oil was discovered in California. There was a lot of anticipation for a north coast oil boom. Towns were popping up with names like Gas Jet (Bear River) and Oil City. Petrolia was even called Petroleum originally. To everyone's dismay, this boom never came. Due to the east coast's five-year head start, land disputes and unforeseen geological features in the seismically-significant region, the oil wells hardly produced sustainable amounts. Despite several attempts throughout the next century, the area's oil riches never came. By the middle of the 20th century, all that was left was remnants of oil derricks like this scattered throughout the Mattole Valley. A plaque in Petrolia was dedicated in 1955, commemorating the location of California's first drilled oil wells.

Vote!

Editor:

A vote for Measure A will ensure that the city of Arcata's trails, parks and open spaces will continue to provide users a healthy natural environment. The citizens of Arcata are extremely fortunate to have had city staff, elected officials and citizen volunteers over the years that have had the foresight to have a strategy for providing these spaces.

These outdoor opportunities are recognized internationally as characteristics of a healthy community and add value to both our lives and property. The true value of these community investments cannot only be measured by numbers of users but also by type and quality of uses; environmental education, art and photography, aesthetic landscapes, encounters and closeness with nature, and many others.

The heavy use of outdoor spaces during the COVID pandemic has emphasized the value of these spaces for both exercise and stress relief. I urge you to vote yes for Measure A and help maintain and improve our outdoor spaces.

Bob Gearheart, Arcata

Editor:

This election is a perfect example of why we need ranked choice voting in Eureka and why we should vote yes on Measure C.

The number of candidates running for city council is exciting. More candidates means different points of view, and voters get to hear a wider range of ideas. Unfortunately, because of our current system, there is a very good chance that we will end up with winners who got less than a majority vote. In Ward Four, five people are running, so we could have a winner who only receives 21 percent of the vote, meaning 79 percent of people didn't vote for them.

We can have elections with multiple candidates and majority winners. Measure C will allow us to vote for the candidates we truly support, rather than voting strategically against ones we don't like. It's still one person, one vote, but better. Vote yes on C!

Caroline Griffith, Eureka

Editor:

My name is Liza Welsh. I am a candidate to represent Ward Four on the Eureka City Council but, today, I am writing in support of Measure C, the ranked-choice voting initiative in Eureka. Ranked choice voting is good for democracy. It gives voters the option to rank candidates by order of preference, reducing vote splitting, something that may affect us in the Fourth Ward this election. The winning candidate ends up having the support of more voters, avoiding the weak plurality effect. Ranked-choice voting has been in effect in Oakland since 2010. While working on my master of public policy (MPP) degree, I voted in two Oakland elections, and I found the ranked-choice system to be intuitive and sensible. I strongly support ranked-choice voting and, frankly, I wish that we already had it! I hope that Eureka voters will agree!

Liza Welsh, Eureka

Editor:

Two days ago, a friend had a medical emergency in McKinleyville, the kind of health crisis that requires a response within minutes if there is to be minimal damage. I'm asking everyone to vote yes on Measure F so that our friends, relatives and community do not have to worry if that station is fully staffed on the day there's a medical crisis. There's a reason we have three stations to serve a large geographical area that includes not only Arcata and McKinleyville, but also Jacoby Creek, Bayside and Samoa. You may not ever have an emergency caused by health issues or a fire, but your neighbor might. Please consider everyone who might be, already has been or will be affected. Don't short change our service providers.

Pamela Ann Brown, Arcata

Editor:

Arcata Fire Department claims that 44 percent of its vehicles are out of commission due to deferred maintenance. Perhaps AFD should manage its money more wisely. According to Transparent California, the chief's salary (total pay and benefits) was $186,983.00 in year 2016. Year 2017, it increased to $195,962.00. Year 2019, it increased again to $212,693.00.

His brother's salary, along with all battalion chiefs and captains increased substantially, too. Instead of using funds for maintenance, it went toward substantial salary increases. To review the exorbitant salaries received by the AFD, please enter Arcata Fire Department Salaries in California on the Yahoo page. Scroll down and click on Transparent California. Scroll down to Fire Protection District, then click on Arcata Fire Protection District. Search records for years 2016, 2017 and 2019. State employees have had a 10 percent reduction in their salaries. Why not the Arcata Fire Department?

Vote NO on Measure F (another tax).

Linda Palmrose, Bayside

Editor:

With a pandemic, unprecedented wildfires (neither of which are going away any time soon), and a ratings-obsessed president (who, hopefully, will be going away soon) — we cannot dispute that we live in difficult times.

Measure F funds the real heroes in our community — the firefighters who put their lives on the line every time someone calls 911. In an emergency, seconds count. A simple fire can easily escalate out of control. We all know this. Measure F is not perfect, but at times like this we need to give our real heroes the resources they need to do the job. And this will cost the average household less than a couple of bucks a week. That's a bargain.

"F no," no. "F yes."

Charles Davy, Bayside

Editor:

I am a Fortuna resident and fully support Measure G on the Nov. 3 ballot. Measure G extends Measure E for eight years, at which time the voters can decide if they want to continue the measure. Measure G is not a new tax. It extends current Measure E, an essential services ¾-cent sales/use tax. All proceeds will remain in Fortuna.

Fortuna voters passed Measure E in 2016 with the promise by the city to use all proceeds on: police services, programs for youth and seniors, parks and recreation improvement, streets, sidewalks and drainage, city hall administration, nuisance abatement and infrastructure improvement. A community oversight committee was formed by the mayor and city council and meets on a regular basis. The promises have all been kept.

Fortuna is a safer, cleaner, better city thanks to funds derived under Measure E and Fortuna residents deserve to continue to enjoy these benefits into the foreseeable future.

Please vote yes on Measure G on Nov. 3.

Walt Wilson, Fortuna

Editor:

Your Oct. 8 article on Measure H talks of negative COVID-19 economic impacts and the $4.65 million cut in general fund spending for Eureka. A March 8, 2019, Times-Standard article talks of how Eureka's unfunded pension liability payment was $5.4 million in 2019 and how these yearly pension debt payments will increase to $8.4 million in 2029.

Eureka needs Measure H funding to restore police funding and provide services. These increasing yearly pension debt payments will slowly diminish financial gains made by Measure H.

Dec. 10 and 19, 2019, articles in the Mad River Union about Measure Z explain how increasing personnel costs are diminishing services provided by Measure Z.

When will government move beyond raising taxes, increasingly a partial and temporary fix, and bring forth and implement serious pension reform?

Patrick Cloney, Eureka

Editor:

Proposition 15 requires reassessment only on large commercial and industrial properties paying property taxes at market values set when purchased, decades ago. Big corporations would pay property taxes based on current fair market value — just like the rest of us!

Exemptions: residential property, including rentals; agricultural land including timberland; land trusts, refuges, dedicated “open space”; and business property valued less than $3 million.

The money, about $8 billion to $12 billion annually, must go to a “dedicated” fund, not the state general fund. It can only be paid to schools and communities. Local governments could use the funds to reduce the need for bond issues and assessments.

Our schools desperately need more funding! There already is a budget shortfall, due to pandemic costs, forcing cuts to school funding. What further cuts will be forced by the cost of fires? The need is urgent — please vote yes on Proposition 15!

Margaret Dickinson, Eureka

Editor:

For California voters the single most important vote this election may be a yes vote on state Proposition 15.

You’ll correct almost 40 years of injustice in property tax law that has allowed the wealthiest corporates to benefit from a law that was sold as protection for individual homeowners (Proposition 13 in 1978).

These corporations have pocketed what should be their fair share of our collective tax burden to the detriment of our schools and our communities’ safety. Homeowners and small businesses are exempt (in fact it cuts small business taxes!), as are all agricultural and timberlands. This tax will be levied on just 10 percent of our most expensive commercial properties.

Proposition 15 will close property tax loopholes benefiting wealthy corporations, cut small business taxes, reclaim billions every year to invest in our schools and local communities, exempt homeowners, renters, small businesses and agricultural land so they continue to be protected by Prop 13, and prioritize transparency and accountability by requiring public disclosure of all new revenues and how they are spent.

Just 10 percent of California’s most expensive nonresidential commercial properties account for 92 percent of Proposition 15’s loophole-closing revenues. Learn more at: www.yes15.org.

Richard Salzman, Arcata

Editor:

I will be voting for Estelle Fennell for Second District supervisor.

I have watched Estelle work very hard to bring many projects to fruition over the years, and believe she wants to bring many more to the finish line.

Estelle is not an ideologue. She listens respectfully to all sides and is capable of changing her mind when the facts support it. She is a kind, sensitive person who I believe has had to develop a thicker skin to serve our diverse, outspoken community.

Cannabis legalization was always going to be messy. It is a work in progress. She has my support and admiration.

Lisa Cyrek, Whitethorn

Editor:

There are times when we have “people treasures” among us, like Dr. Fauci, who is a national treasure guiding us on our coronavirus behavior from his many years of experience.

Likewise, we have a local treasure in Estelle Fennell, serving on our Humboldt County Board of Supervisors.

I am old enough to recall the opening of our Humboldt radio station, KMUD. It included a news program that I never listened to until Estelle took it over and provided a half-hour of significant news and interviews. I was so impressed with the quality, I was sure she must have had experience with CBS, which she did not.

Dedication, intelligence and reliable information was part of her enormous ability to contribute. A welcomed treasure. We need to retain this high level of dedication, intelligence and ability to provide reliable information by re-electing Supervisor Estelle Fennell.

Lee Becker, Redway

Editor:

Estelle Fennell is the right choice for the Second District supervisor. Estelle has worked diligently on the local, regional, state and federal level to bring needed resources and services to our rural district and county.

Estelle was a key player in helping to

Editor:

I want to put in a plug for Scott Bauer for Eureka City Council. Though I don't live in his ward, I live nearby and I've known him for many years. He is thoughtful, passionate and very hardworking. He wants a future for Eureka that enhances opportunity for everyone and embraces families, a city that builds on our unique natural environment and small town qualities.

In the short term, we know that tough times lie ahead and being on the council will require a skill set that champions innovation, thoughtful assessment and the ability to balance competing interests. It will require being a good listener, a desire to engage citizens with different points of view and working well with fellow councilmembers. Scott holds these qualities in abundance and he wants to keep moving Eureka forward — to help local businesses recover from the impacts of the COVID, improve city streets and parks, add trails, protect and encourage a thriving arts scene, bring new good-paying jobs, build new housing and address neighborhood blight. Scott's enthusiasm and can-do attitude is right for Eureka now. If you live in the Fourth Ward, please consider casting your vote for Scott — he'll be good for all of Eureka.

Elizabeth Murguia, Eureka

Editor:

I am endorsing Kati "Texas" Moulton to represent the Second Ward on Eureka City Council. I've known Kati for more than 15 years and we have worked together at North Star Quest Camp for Girls for eight years. Kati brings out the best in people with amazing projects, like the beloved Kinetic Grand Championship, which showcases creativity and brings positive recognition to our region.

As camp director, Kati has helped empower hundreds of young campers navigating adolescence, and coached camp staff to be safe, fun, inspiring adults. She has shown humility in studying racial equity to open her own heart and mind to the challenges communities of color face and reminded us that we can all learn and do better. Eureka is a microcosm of the issues affecting the state and nation, a place where we can do things differently when the same old things no longer work. Vote Kati!

Julie Ryan, Eureka

Editor:

I have worked with Kati Moulton for more than a decade through North Star Quest Camp and have witnessed her leadership and efficiency firsthand. From her work with the Kinetic Grand Championship to the Ink People, Kati has spent her life working hard to serve and improve our community and wants to continue to do so as a councilmember. She wants to celebrate what is remarkable about Eureka and help improve what needs to be addressed.

Kati is a natural leader, a nurturing mother and a downright fantastic human being. She has an innate way of bringing people together — something we could all use a little more of right now. If there is anyone I trust to shoulder the complexities of Eureka, it's Kati.

Let's elect Kati for Ward Two!

Natalia Nelson, Arcata

Editor:

Liza Welsh has been and always will be a person of the highest integrity. I have seen her fight for the rights of others for the entire seven years I have known her. When she was attending university in Oakland at Mills, she went before the city council there in support of equity for small cannabis business owners. When she worked for music festivals, I saw her organize workers and assist peers who had been taken advantage of.

Recently, I see her working hard to protect the benefits and pay for her fellow county workers. She spent her quarantine days this year diving head first into assembling, distributing and helping with a project to provide face shields for medical providers. Liza would go above and beyond for the people of Eureka and would absolutely be the hardest worker that the City Council could hope to have.

About that Mountain Lion Video ...

By Kimberly Wear
kim@northcoastjournal.com

A mountain lion, like this one, was protecting her cubs, not stalking a runner who came along the family in Provo, Utah.
California Department of Fish and Wildlife/File

Chances are most people have seen — or at least heard about — the now viral video of a Utah man who went out for a run in a Provo canyon on Oct. 10 and ended up face to face with a very angry mama mountain lion.

For six tense and profanity-laced minutes, Kyle Burgess kept filming with his cellphone as he backed away from the cougar, sometimes cussing and other times telling her she needed to go back to her babies, which he had inadvertently stumbled upon on a trail, at first mistaking the cubs for bobcat kittens.

“I don’t feel like dying today,” Burgess says at one point in the video posted to his Instagram account.

(Spoiler alert: He was shaken up but otherwise fine, and had to traverse the same area of the encounter to get back to his car, according to an interview in the Deseret News, but did so this time while carrying a rock and a stick.)

While certainly scary, several wildlife experts who have commented on the chance meeting share the assessment of Humboldt County conservationist and California State Parks guide John “Griff” Griffith, who described the mountain lion’s actions as a mother protecting her young.

“I know a little something about mountain lions,” he says, in a recent Facebook video while taking many a media outlet to task for labeling her behavior as “stalking” in a riff that skirts the conspiracy theory line. “That was not a mountain lion stalking. That was a mama mountain lion trying to get someone away from her cubs. There is a difference.”

Along similar lines, Beth Schaefer, director of animal programs at the Los Angeles Zoo, described the cougar’s response as “escorting behavior” to the Los Angeles Times.

In other words, the mountain lion was making it clear to an unwelcomed visitor in her territory that it was time to get (we can only imagine she would have added a certain expletive here) out.

Schaefer noted the sudden pounces that caused many who watched the video to jump were actually what’s known in the animal world as bluff charges, which cats like a mountain lion don’t use if they are about to take down prey.

The truly scary part, Schaefer tells the Times, is when the mother lion disappears off-screen — which is more along the lines of a hunt — before quickly returning to the path.

Those who watch it might also note she repeatedly keeps looking back in the direction of her cubs.

The Mountain Lion Foundation, a Sacramento-based nonprofit dedicated to the animal’s preservation, put out a plea soon after the video went viral asking individuals and the media to be careful in how they described the encounter when sharing the story.

"She clearly did not view him as prey," Debra Chase, the foundation's CEO, says in a post. "The behavior was meant to chase him away, which it did very well. The mother lion was reacting to a perceived threat to her young."

The foundation also states that misunderstandings about animal behavior can put not only wildlife at risk, but people as well.

"We need to counter the idea that mountain lions are naturally dangerous to humans," Chase adds. "The lion wasn't looking for a conflict and she left the area as soon as she was able."

Griffith notes that Humboldt County is mountain lion country but even though they are around us all the time, the likelihood is most people will never see one. And that is the way they like it.

Sightings do, of course, happen occasionally in both rural and more urban areas, with more than one being spotted at the forest-adjacent Humboldt State University campus over the years without incident, not to mention Cutten or Sunny Brae.

But mountain lion attacks on humans are very rare, Griffith says, and if it's going to happen, it will likely be stealthy, not the paw-pounding display the Utah cougar put on for Burgess.

"They are going to attack you usually from behind," says Griffith, a popular producer of videos about the North Coast parks, who himself went viral in the past with a posting of him dancing with a California Conservation Corp crew and hosted the online show Wild Jobs for Animal Planet.

That rear approach was the experience of former Fortuna resident Jim Hamm, who made international headlines after he barely survived a 2007 attack during a hike with his wife Nell in Prairie Creek Redwoods State Park, where she fought off the mountain lion with a pen and a branch.

Jim Hamm died a year ago this month of pancreatic cancer. He was 82.

Griffith says he's only seen a mountain lion a handful of times, but if you do encounter one, there are basic rules to follow: Make yourself seem as large as possible, make noise, keep eye contact and slowly create space away from the animal. Never run away.

In that regard, Griffith says Burgess did just about everything right, except bring a partner along for the run in a rural area, which would have allowed one person to keep acting big while another reached for a rock or other implement to chase the cat away.

Ultimately, the encounter ends when Burgess does throw a rock, which he told Griffith about after getting wind of Griffith's original video and coming on board to film a follow-up.

Burgess says she kept bluff charging every time he started to reach down and he waited until there was a bit more room between the two of them to finally grab one and send her scurrying.

The 26 year old says he hopes to turn his experience into one that can help people better understand and respect wildlife.

"This video has shown a lot of people things they've never seen before," Burgess says, with Griffith quickly chiming in, "Biologists things they never seen."

"Exactly," Burgess responds.

When asked, the avid runner says he doesn't regret the encounter.

"I'm just glad we both went out of this unscathed," Burgess says.

The Zwerdling Law Firm is honored to have Zachary Zwerdling voted Best Attorney on the North Coast

If you have been in a serious motor vehicle accident, you may start receiving direct "solicitations" from law firms outside the area who want your case. These solicitations are illegal and should be reported to the State Bar. Out-of-town law firms will sometimes create a website or post a YouTube video about your accident.

While not technically illegal, these are indirect efforts to solicit you as a client. Beware - many of these lawyers (who seem to be primarily from Los Angeles) do not have significant trial experience and no connection to Humboldt County. They are looking for quick lowball settlements from the insurance company.

Please take a look at our blog post, zwerdlinglaw.com/blog, which discusses these issues more in detail.

Arkley’s ‘Dog Ranch’ Sold to Conservation Coalition

It turns out “never, ever, ever, ever” isn’t so long after all — sometimes it’s a little more than 15 years, in fact.

Back in 2005, after swooping in at the 11th hour to outbid Friends of the Dunes and the Humboldt Bay Harbor District for a 200-acre property on the Samoa Peninsula known as the Dog Ranch, foiling preservation plans, Eureka businessman and billionaire Rob Arkley made no effort to conceal his glee, according to a report in the Journal.

“They got in second place!” he said, adding that one of the first things he intended to do was fence the property off from public access. “And it’ll never, ever, ever, ever be sold to them. I’m not going to give it to the government agencies. I believe there’s far too much government land.”

While it’s unclear what prompted the change of heart or wallet, there clearly was a change, as Friends of the Dunes announced Oct. 15 that it, the Harbor District, the Wildlife Conservation Board, the California Natural Resources Agency and the California Coastal Conservancy had completed a deal with Arkley’s Security National Investments X to purchase the property “for the purposes of conservation and public access.”

Arkley put the property west of the Samoa Bridge — which included an older home, outbuildings, a ranch facility, a wide swath of sensitive dune habitats and an ecologically significant piece of coastal forest — back on the market in 2014 with an asking price of $2 million. Friends of the Dunes Executive Director Mike Cipra said the final purchase price was “right around” that number.

Cipra, who said he “picked up the keys from Security National” on Oct. 16, described the property as special and repeatedly expressed gratitude to the other agencies and organizations involved in the purchase.

Cold Comfort

Humboldt real estate rises amid COVID, climate change

By Elaine Weinreb
newsroom@northcoastjournal.com

*“I’d never come here before
... I found Trinidad on a map — and here I am.”*

Humboldt County hasn’t always been well known to the rest of the state, with many Californians placing the northern border somewhere near San Francisco, long unaware one could drive six hours past “the City” and still be south of Oregon. But things are different now. The Redwood Curtain has been lifted. Trinidad has always been a tourist town but longtime residents will tell you this year has been unlike others in the past. Despite COVID-19, the streets of the tiny village were crowded with strangers and the big parking lot next to Trinidad State Beach was packed day in and day out. License plates were from Utah, Texas, Arizona and other hot, dry states. Long lines formed for take-out service at the town’s restaurants.

While the tourists are usually gone by Labor Day, the season continued well into October this year. A few said that they were fleeing the fires and looking for permanent housing. Many more said they were escaping the smoke that has blanketed the entire West Coast. Though there were smoky days here, it just didn’t seem as bad as where they came from. But the most common comment was that it was cool. They were not referring to lifestyles. They were referring to temperature.

While 78 degrees might be a record-breaker for the foggy coastal town of Trinidad, it was not 110.

Wildfires — and the hot, dry conditions that drive them — are the most visible symptom of climate change. Scientists warn more rather than fewer of them are likely as the global temperature inexorably climbs upward.

But the change is not evenly distributed and the increase of even one degree can make a great deal of difference in local climate, says National Weather Service warning coordination meteorologist Ryan Aylward.

In coastal Humboldt, according to graphs furnished by Aylward, the average temperature has increased by two degrees Fahrenheit over the past 30 years. In comparison, Ukiah, some 150 miles to the southeast, has increased by three degrees, making a town that was always hot in the summer now unbearable to many.

Realtors are well aware that Humboldt’s coastline has suddenly become attractive as a climate refuge to both Californians and residents of other states.

“I’d never come here before,” one house hunter said. “I found Trinidad on a map — and here I am.” Others have come here before for vacations and decided it might be a good place to settle in — especially if their jobs enable them to work remotely, something many are doing in the COVID age.

And, as restaurants, small shops and entertainment venues began closing, the attraction of large cities — with the crowds and higher rates of COVID — is losing its luster for some.

Statistics kept by the California Association of Realtors show that home sale prices in the Bay Area and Southern California have started to drop as people emigrate to less crowded areas. And, not surprisingly, housing prices have risen in the coastal areas of Humboldt County.

“Real estate follows the laws of supply and demand,” local Realtor Patti Stearns said. “The supply is limited; the demand is high; so the prices go up.”

Stearns, who notes 60 percent of her new buyers are from outside Humboldt, estimates the price of a two-bedroom house in Arcata as $350,000 and one in Eureka as $300,000.

Prices, however, can go a lot higher. “When people come here from other areas, they are initially surprised by the prices. They have the 'Humboldt Dream' in their mind," Stearns said. "They want clean, breathable air, and open space. They want a nice big house with a lot of acreage that is close to town but has lots of privacy. They don't want to be in a subdivision. They are surprised to realize that even if they can find this combination of attributes, it may cost over $5 million."

Another factor in the real estate boom is the drop in interest rates. With rates hovering at about 2.5 percent, the cost of a mortgage is much lower than it would have been five years ago. Somebody who might not have previously dreamed of buying a fixer-upper can now borrow the money to make the necessary repairs without going broke in the process.

But salaries, like temperatures, are not evenly distributed throughout the state, and rural counties like Humboldt are not in the same range as large urban ones.

So, a Bay Area climate refugee who is able to hold onto a high-paying tech job and work from home has a distinct financial advantage over a local nurse or teacher who thought they'd saved enough for a down payment on a starter home.

Meanwhile, a strong housing market coupled with a limited housing stock puts additional pressure on the rental market, pricing some current residents out of it.

With prices increasing, there is an incentive for property owners to put their houses up for sale, which means if it was previously being rented, the tenants must find a different place to live. This can be difficult in an environment where there is already a shortage of rental housing.

"I have people who are waiting for a house to come onto the market — and in the meantime they are renting here," said Mike Reinman, the owner of North Coast Furnished Rentals.

He noted there is an incentive for owners of rental properties to convert cheap unfurnished apartments or houses into more lucrative furnished rentals.

Moreover, state and local laws protecting tenants against eviction because of COVID-related financial problems have had an unforeseen side effect. Some landlords, especially small landlords who own one or two rental properties and depend on the rent for their own income, may be beginning to wonder what would happen to them if their tenants couldn't pay the rent.

Those cases might create another incentive to put rental property on the market while they still can — resulting in more displaced tenants.

Few people are willing to discuss their financial difficulties publicly — but a close look at the local housing section of Craig'slist shows about a third of the listings are from people wanting housing. Many convey a sense of desperation.

"I'm looking for a studio in Arcata," said one young woman, "but I'll settle for anything within a 45-mile driving distance."

Lowest rents, not surprisingly, can be found in Crescent City, which is 78 miles north of Arcata. For those with a mobile home, RV or a tiny house, a space can be had for less than $400 a month compared to double for a one-bedroom apartment in Arcata, at around $900 per month. That's not including deposit, the possible need to pass a rigorous screening test and a potential several month wait to get in.

At the bottom of the ladder are those without any four walls to call their own, camping in their vehicles, couch-surfing with friends or doubled up with other family members. Even getting into a homeless shelter requires one to be connected to a social services agency. And there is a three- to five-year waiting list for affordable housing units sponsored by HUD, also called "Section 8 housing."

One elderly woman, who asked not to be identified, said she had finally gotten into a HUD apartment "after being on the waiting list for three years."

How will this all turn out? Will Humboldt turn into another Carmel, available only to millionaires? Will a sudden housing boom place even more pressure on our agricultural and forested lands? What will happen when sea level rise becomes more noticeable and unaffordable flood insurance starts affecting residents of King Salmon and the peninsula? Only time will tell.

Elaine Weinreb is a freelance journalist. She tries to repay the state of California for giving her a degree in environmental studies and planning (Sonoma State University) at a time when tuition was still affordable.

"I'm looking for a studio in Arcata," said one young woman, "but I'll settle for anything within a 45-mile driving distance."

Election Cake

A recipe for democracy (don't mess it up)

By Nora Mounce

onthetable@northcoastjournal.com

In the highly charged political culture of the day, hardly a word has been left untagged with electoral rhetoric. Take “patriotic”: the darling of the conservative minority, coopting the red, white and blue, and displays of affection for our incredible yet terribly flawed nation. On the other hand, progressives have claimed “science,” once a benchmark of Gen Ed, yet somehow now a popular elective.

Regardless of political bent, few seem to be enjoying the hostile bifurcation of our country. So far, 2020 has ushered in periods of civil unrest unseen since the Vietnam War era and the COVID-related deaths of almost a quarter-million Americans. Families are advised to stay physically distant by public health officials, and doubtless some are finding it a convenient way to avoid relatives whose yards bear the wrong campaign signs.

Wading into the mess, “vote” is often waved as a white flag that says, “I’m not here to fight with you on Facebook — just vote.” Former First Lady Michelle Obama gave an impassioned speech during this year’s Democratic National Convention wearing a V-O-T-E necklace and last week, Demi Lovato performed at the Billboard Music Awards in front of giant white block letters reminding us to “VOTE.” At the same event, Lizzo accepted an award in a dress stamped all over with the word.

Personally, I’m clinging fast to the hope that November delivers swift and radical change. But if we believe in the project of American democracy, despite it being Swiss cheesed with holes (holes like racism), an election should be determined by the will of the people. People have fought and died for our privilege to vote. Other people are fighting right now to remove that right from immigrants, the differently abled and elderly Americans who desperately need the protections that will come with a new administration. With less than two weeks until Election Day, please, in the name of whatever you consider holy, vote.

To lean into the spirit of civic duty and make the most of our #staythefuck-home lifestyles, try baking your politics into this fortifying election cake. With an Americana twist on the boozy fruitcakes popular in colonial times, election cake recipes date back to the Revolutionary War. Cookbook author Amelia Simmons is credited with publishing the first election cake recipe in 1796, which called for a whopping 8 pounds of flour and 4 pounds of raisins. Women, who of course couldn’t vote themselves, would bake massive quantities of the cake to encourage (white) men to participate. The tradition was a way for women, stripped of representation until 1920, to celebrate the crown jewel of democracy: Election Day.

A highly malleable recipe, my own version blends European and North American traditions by showcasing hearty dried figs, zesty candied ginger and Jack Daniel’s. Traditionally baked as a Bundt cake, I downsized to a cupcake tin to stay in vogue with pandemic etiquette single servings. Feel free to use whatever dried fruits, nuts and brown spirits you have on hand — your election cake is your decision. Don’t mess it up!

Election cake for our times: spicy, boozy and individually portioned.

Mark McKenna

2020 Election Cake

Ingredients:

- ¼ ounce packet active dry yeast
- ½ cup warm water (about 105 F)
- 1 ½ cups all-purpose flour, divided
- ½ cup dried figs, chopped
- ½ cup candied ginger
- ½ cup walnuts, coarsely chopped
- ¼ cup Jack Daniel’s whiskey
- ½ cup, plus 1 tablespoon firmly packed dark brown sugar
- ¾ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon ground cardamom
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 6 tablespoons (¾ stick) unsalted butter, room temperature
- 2 eggs
- ½ teaspoon pure vanilla extract
- 6 ounces confectioner’s sugar
- 3 tablespoons orange juice

Grease a 12-cup muffin pan with butter or fill with cupcake liners.

Sprinkle yeast over the warm water in a large bowl. Stir, then let stand until the yeast has dissolved and the mixture bubbles on top, 1-2 minutes. Add ¾ cup flour into the bowl and stir until smooth. Cover and set aside in a warm place for about 30 minutes or until the mixture has large bubbles on the surface.

Meanwhile, place the dried fruit, walnuts, whiskey and 1 tablespoon brown sugar in a small pot over medium heat. Stir until the sugar is dissolved and mixture is hot and bubbling. Remove from heat and allow it to cool.

In a medium bowl, whisk together remaining flour, cinnamon, cardamom and salt.

When the flour-yeast mixture has risen, beat the butter, the remaining ¾ cup brown sugar with an electric mixer on medium speed until light and fluffy, 3 to 4 minutes. Beat in the eggs, 1 at a time, until combined, then add ½ teaspoon vanilla. Beat in the flour-yeast mixture. Reduce the mixer speed to low, then gradually beat in the flour-spice mixture, followed by the fruit-nut mixture. Beat on medium until well blended. The dough should be soft and elastic, almost like brioche dough or an extremely thick batter.

Distribute the dough evenly in the prepared cupcake tin, filling each no more than ¾ full. Cover the pan with a dish towel and let the cupcakes rise in a warm place for 1 hour. When cupcakes are almost done rising, preheat oven to 375 F.

Uncover the pan and bake until cupcakes are golden brown and a toothpick comes out clean, 18-20 minutes. Let cool in the pan and then loosen sides with a small metal spatula before removing each cupcake, allowing them to cool completely on a wire rack.

Before serving, stir together confectioners’ sugar and orange juice, thickening to your preference with more or less sugar. Pour glaze over each cupcake and allow to set before serving. ●

NCJ GET OUT

The Ramblers spread out on the Ma-le'l Dunes.

Hiking in Place with the Ramblers

By Louisa Rogers

getout@northcoastjournal.com

The North Coast, with its wealth of natural environments to explore, from mountains and marshes to river trails and red-wood forests, is also rich in hiking groups. Recently I checked out one of the oldest: the Ramblers. We met promptly at 9 a.m. at the Ma-le'l Dunes south parking lot on a sunny Monday morning. For the next two hours, seven of us followed leader Gail Popham to tromp through coastal forest, steep sand dunes and beaches in what the Bureau of Land Management brochure calls "one of the most biologically diverse dune communities on the West Coast." Our group consisted of two men and five women, mostly single, all 60 and up.

As we walked in ones, twos and threes, masked or carefully separated, we were sometimes companionably silent, other times chatting about the pandemic, real estate prices, the marriage of two members last year, other local hiking groups and the breathtaking views. Noticeably — and to my relief — no one brought up politics or the election season.

The Ramblers was started in 2007 by Kathy Layton and Jenny Hanson, who met in a hiking class offered by Elderhostel (now Road Scholar). Afterward, they agreed they wanted to create an ongoing group for people who liked to walk. Layton was new in town and unfamiliar with the area, but was willing to create and manage the mailing list, while Hanson, a professional nature guide, knew the North Coast intimately. Though their members joined by word of mouth and never through advertising, at one point they had more than 200 on the list, with 10-15 people on a hike, occasionally up to 30. "The Ramblers was more than just a hiking group," Hanson says. "Over time we developed into a cohesive, close-knit group with anniversary parties and a culture of civility and inclusion, providing a safe place to be outside with other people."

For years, every Monday and Friday the group would hike all over Humboldt and Del Norte counties, from Jedediah Smith State Park near Crescent City to the Avenue of the Giants. Then came the pandemic. "When we found out that hiking was one of the exceptions to the shelter-in-place rule, we never missed an opportunity," says Popham. But since members are discouraged from carpooling, they choose trails closer to home. Recent scheduled hikes included Trillium Falls in the Redwood National Park, Patrick's Point, Humboldt Bay National Wildlife Refuge, Fortuna Riverwalk, the Hammond Trail and the Hikshari Trail. Most hikes are 3 to 4 miles, or about two hours. No dogs are allowed.

During COVID-19, some members continue to walk, while others temporarily dropped out, interpreting the shelter-in-place rules more strictly. Numbers now range from seven to 12 and hikers wear masks or maintain 6-foot separation.

Popham joined the Ramblers three years ago after retiring from her job as a Caltrans biologist. In her role as leader, she sends out the hiking schedule, choosing from a pool of around 50 hikes and alternating between northern and southern locations. During the hike, she keeps an eye on the slower walkers, making sure no one gets lost. (As someone who has gotten lost at Ma-le'i Dunes, I was grateful to be looked after.)

Photographer Gary Todoroff says, "I joined as a way to get past my doldrums after my wife's death." His friend Annie, who went to the same church, thought he should get out of the house more and go hiking, biking and camping. Eventually, as they spent more time together outdoors, their friendship deepened and last year they got married.

Karen Nessler, a widow from Blue Lake, began hiking with the Ramblers two years ago but had to pause when she broke her arm after tripping on a rock on a hike at Trinidad Head.

Nessler moved to Blue Lake when she was 10. "I spent most of my life here, worked as a clerk for the city of Blue Lake and raised a family," she says. "I had no idea there were so many beautiful areas to visit nearby. I just love being out in the fresh air with friendly people who enjoy exploring nature."

The Ramblers, like Coleridge, Wordsworth and others throughout history who've taken up this ancient practice, know that walking in areas of natural beauty is a balm for the spirit — even more so during this poignant era of isolation, fear and stress.

People interested in the Ramblers can contact gailpopham@gmail.com. ●

Salmon and Anglers Waiting on Rain

By Kenny Priest

fishing@northcoastjournal.com

In an all too familiar pattern, October is again looking like it will be void of substantial rainfall. Aside from a few weak systems, it seems we won't see enough rain to put a rise into any of our North Coast rivers or open them up to fishing anytime soon. This is nothing short of torture for coastal salmon anglers chomping at the bit to drift the Smith, Chetco or Eel rivers. What makes it even more painful are the memories that keep popping up on social media showing big green rivers, very large salmon and even bigger smiles.

Humboldt and Del Norte counties have been dry since the weekend of Oct. 11, when just enough rain fell to put the Smith and Chetco on a very slight rise. That got some fish out of the estuary and into the lower sections of the river, but it wasn't enough to open the rivers to fishing.

There hasn't been any rain to speak of since then. And there isn't much on the horizon. "There is a weak front moving into the area on Friday night and into Saturday morning," said Kathleen Zontos of Eureka's National Weather Service. "It won't do much to our river levels. We're looking at maybe 1/10 of an inch in the Smith basin and less in Humboldt. Another weak system is forecasted for the 27th, but that is looking light as well. A ridge of high pressure has been either blocking or weakening systems that are trying to move onshore and forcing storms to track far to our north, keeping them from sagging into the northern end of the state. The models are showing below normal rainfall at least through the end of the month."

Upper Trinity quota update

According to CDFW, the Upper Trinity quota for adult king salmon will be met as of 11:59 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 25. This triggers the closure of the adult Chinook salmon fishery downstream of the Old Lewiston Bridge to the State Route 299 West bridge at Cedar Flat. No closure date has been provided for the Lower Trinity. The Upper Klamath, which closed to the retention of adult kings on Oct. 18, and Upper Trinity will remain open for harvest of jack (2-year-old) Chinook salmon (less than or equal to 23 inches). All adult Chinook salmon caught must be immediately released and reported on an angler's North Coast Salmon Report Card.

The Rivers:

Trinity

We started to see some fresh salmon move into the Junction City area last week, reports Junction City Store owner Frank Chapman. "Right now, there's a mix of older fall fish and some really bright ones," said Chapman. "Quite a few steelhead showed up as well, so the fishing has really picked up in our area. Roe under a bobber has been really good for salmon and will also catch steelhead."

Chetco

Salmon fishing has been fair on the Chetco estuary, reports Andy Martin of Wild Rivers Fishing. "One or two big fish are being caught a day, along with a decent number of jacks, but boat traffic has increased and overall catch rates are a fish for every fifth or sixth rod," said Martin. "The outgoing tide has been best. Lots of salmon moved upriver with the rain in early October, while salmon also are being caught and released by anglers finding for rockfish in the ocean." ●

Well, happy 20th anniversary, Northcoast Regional Land Trust. No way the folks who've spent the last two decades conserving wild and working landscapes are going to let a pandemic stop them from celebrating and fundraising. Instead, the annual Boots & Birkenstocks party goes virtual on Saturday, Oct. 24 at 6 p.m. (free). You can start perusing auction items now, ahead of guest auctioneer state Sen. Mike McGuire's appearance at the podium. Visit www.ncrlt.org/AC2020 for details.

Always wanted to loosen your lederhosen and enjoy a traditional Oktoberfest feast of beer, bratwurst, German potato salad, red cabbage and pretzels on your couch, where you can immediately lie down afterward? On Sunday, Oct. 25 from 4-6 p.m., the Rotary Club of Arcata Sunrise serves up Oktoberfest Drive-by Dinner to-go from the Griffin ($20). Mason jar doubles of saffron and orgeat Lemon Drops and spicy Margarita d'Oros are on the pre-order menu, too, ($22) at www.arcatasunrise.org/oktoberfest-dinner.

Hey, you were gonna wear a mask anyway, right? So put one on, follow social distancing rules and take the little ones in your household to Arcata Main Street Trick or Treat around the plaza on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays this month from 2 to 4 p.m. (free). Just look for the ghost signs in the windows of participating shops — follow their guidelines and keep it safe and spooky.

Every Breath You Take

By Barry Evans

fieldnotes@northcoastjournal.com

Other than The Anatomy Coloring Book (you have to be a certain age), I can’t say I’ve paid much attention to my internal organs. Most of the time they all worked fine, so why worry? This lackadaisical attitude came to an abrupt end a few weeks ago when I suffered a collapsed lung — see illustration — marring 73 years, starting at age 5, of accident-free bicycling. Suddenly I had an investment in learning about lungs — their origin, how they work and how to recover full use of mine. Not to mention the arcane and painful business of chest tubes.

Lungs are a relatively recent innovation in the 4-billion-year saga of life on Earth. For 90 percent of its existence here, life got by fine without lungs because it only happened in the oceans. It wasn’t until 400 million years ago, early in the warm Devonian Period, that plants established themselves on dry land (not counting non-vascular plants, like mosses, which emerged earlier). Some 20 million years later, plants were followed by tetrapod fish. Since tissues don’t leave fossils, the exact time frame is speculative, but we do know that by 360 million years ago our audacious four-limbed ancestors had traded gills for lungs — possibly with swim bladders (sacs that allow fish to change buoyancy) as the intermediate step. The invention of lungs turned out to be a giant leap for animal-kind, since it’s far more efficient to obtain oxygen from air than from water. The numbers tell the story: Air contains 21 percent free oxygen compared to less than 1 percent dissolved oxygen in water. (Fish can’t extract oxygen directly from the strongly bonded H<sub>2</sub>O molecules of water.)

Fast forward to humans today. We breathe in and out about 12 times a minute, for roughly half a billion breaths in a lifetime. Unbidden, unappreciated. That’s a lot of available oxygen for our 40 trillion cells to use for energy while excreting carbon dioxide as a waste by-product. Which, of course, is where lungs come in: They’re essentially gas exchangers, swapping fresh-air oxygen for carbon dioxide.

Air enters the body via the nose and mouth, through the windpipe, thence to fork left and right into the lungs. The large tubes branch out into smaller and smaller airways that terminate in some 300 million alveoli — miniscule balloon-like air sacs arranged in clusters. Tiny blood vessels surrounding the thin-walled alveoli take up oxygen while simultaneously ridding the body of carbon dioxide. That may sound more efficient than it actually is; the exhaled air still contains about 15 percent oxygen (remember it went in as 21 percent) but obviously it’s good enough to do the job of keeping us alive.

One happy adaptation that evolution came up with is that our two lungs are subdivided into five lobes, three on the right and two on the left, where the heart takes up space. Happily for me, anyway: Only my right superior lobe was punctured (a result of three fractured ribs), leaving the other four lobes to carry on regardless. Meanwhile, I can report that the insertion of a chest tube — to relieve pressure and drain fluid from the chest cavity normally occupied by the lobe — was worth the excruciating pain. It did the job in five days. Big appreciative sigh!

Barry Evans (barryevans9@yahoo.com) can’t say enough about the wonderful care he received during his five-day stay at St. Joseph Hospital.

The 1980s realness of this outfit is the scariest thing in the basement.

The Haunting of Bly Manor

Lingering Feelings

The Haunting of Bly Manor

By Jennifer Fumiko Cahill

jennifer@northcoastjournal.com

THE HAUNTING OF BLY MANOR. As I looked up the offerings for this week, I knew The Trial of the Chicago Seven, the Aaron Sorkin drama about the courtroom aftermath of the protests at the 1969 Democratic convention, would be the movie of the moment. The New York Times even published a historical explainer as a kind of viewing guide. But trapped in its political echoes as we are — amid protests and escalating police and National Guard response, on the cusp of an election that spotlights racism and other cultural divisions — reader, I recoiled. Please watch what is surely an important film and tell me how it is because for all my curiosity, I know right this second I am one righteous Sorkin Speech™ away from finally and completely losing my damn mind.

Instead I retreated to The Haunting of Bly Manor, the second installment of Mike Flanagan’s haunted house series for Netflix (following in the creaking footsteps of the excellent The Haunting of Hill House) and found myself caught in another kind of echo altogether. Based on the oft-adapted 1898 Henry James novella The Turn of the Screw, the nine-part ghost story melds a handful of plots and themes from the author’s other supernatural stories, too, “Sir Edmund Orme” and “The Romance of Certain Old Clothes” among them. (Screen Rant has a full cataloguing for those looking for seasonal reading material to keep the mood going.) A handful of Hill House cast members return in new roles and, like that first mini-series, it’s beautifully shot, engrossing horror that sustains interest and suspense, playing with the timeline and achieving more with atmosphere than high-tech effects. And like the reverberating traumas upon which Hill House is built, the heavy stone foundation of Bly Manor is heartbreak and our terror of losing ourselves.

Like James’ novella, we start with a gathering, this time a wedding rehearsal dinner, where the guests gather around a fire and listen to a ghost story from a guest (Carla Gugino). In that story, set in 1987, plucky young American Dani Clayton (Victoria Pedretti) pushes past a bad interview in London and nabs a job as au pair for the orphaned nephew and niece, 10 and 8, of Henry Wingrave (Henry Thomas). Replacing the previous au pair — recently deceased — she’s to home school and care for the eerily well-spoken Miles (Benjamin Evan Ainsworth) and Flora (Amelie Bea Smith) at the family's country estate, the sprawling Bly Manor, with its storied portraits, double staircase, misty lake and forbidden wing. (As a wise woman once said, "You in danger, girl.") But some of Dani's pluck is forced, masking fear of her own ghost — one that sends her speed walking out of rooms when she catches sight of a glowing-eyed figure staring her down silently in reflections. Showing up at Bly with a spirit stalker, though, is bringing coals to Newcastle.

At the property, she meets the elegant and kind Mrs. Grose (T'Nia Miller), whose composure is only occasionally broken by episodes of spacing out, and the cook Owen (Rahul Kohli), a chef cheerfully slumming it cooking for kids while he cares for his mother, who suffers from severe dementia. The wry, lightly cynical gardener (Amelia Eve) rounds out the roster of the living. All are concerned with the increasingly odd behavior of the children, with Miles growing angry and disturbingly violent, and Flora falling into trances. The pair are keeping secrets about the house, as well, and something is definitely up with Flora's twig figures and faceless dolls. Outside the house, the appearance of former valet and vanished thief Peter Quint (Oliver Jackson-Cohen) also puts the staff on edge. The theory is that, unaware that she's dead, he may be sniffing around after the late au pair Rebecca (Tahirah Sharif), with whom he had an affair but abandoned.

While there are sections where the pacing lags, the cast — bravely decked out in period correct '80s atrocities — is uniformly excellent and pulls one along. Flanagan was clearly born to shoot creepy mansions and, as Hill House demonstrated, has harnessed the power of the shadowy figure in the background to its greatest effect. Unlike The Turn of the Screw and the 1961 adaptation The Innocents, which I love, there's comparatively little ambiguity beyond the practical metaphysics of the haunting. Instead, trippy time jumps give us insights into the living and the dead, sometimes transitioning us from fearing them to fearing for them. Everyone at Bly is trapped by guilt or obsession or sheer habit, repeating a cycle of grief, violence and thwarted happiness. It's not so much death that's to be feared as the slow wearing away of memories, leaving only, as the narrator tells us, need and rage. TVMA. NETFLIX.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF NANCY MARIE ALLEN CASE NO. PR2000247

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of NANCY MARIE ALLEN, aka NANCY CLLEN
A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Petitioner GRETA LOUISE WALDSMITH
In the Superior Court of California, County of Humboldt. The petition for probate requests that GRETA LOUISE WALDSMITH be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on November 19, 2020 at 2:00 p.m. at the Superior Court of California, County of Humboldt, 825 Fifth Street, Eureka, in Dept: 6. IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property or necessarily a 100% ownership interest in the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off or resolving ownership interest issues, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens as well as the ownership interest(s) that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, lien holder, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (714) 848-9272 or visit this Internet Web site www.elitepostandpub.com using the T.S. number assigned to this case. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.

The beneficiary under said Deed of Trust heretofore executed and delivered to the undersigned a written Declaration of Default and Demand for Sale, and a Written Notice of Default and Election to Sell. The Notice of Default and Election to Sell was recorded in the county where the real property is located, and more than three months have elapsed since such recordation.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING OF THE FORTUNA CITY COUNCIL

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Fortuna City Council will hold a public hearing on Monday, November 2 at 6:00 P.M. to consider an amendment to Title 17 – Zoning Regulations of the Fortuna Municipal Code, Adding Section 17.06.220 Small Wireless Communications Facilities and Amending Section 17.07.004 Administration. The proposed amendments will adopt design, maintenance, and performance standards for small wireless communication facilities.

This meeting will be held in accordance with the Brown Act as currently in effect under the State Emergency Services Act, the Governor's Emergency Declaration related to COVID-19, and the Governor's Executive Order N-29-20 issued on March 17, 2020 that allows attendance by members of the City Council, City staff, and the public to participate by teleconference, videoconference, or both.

If you wish to watch this meeting, it is scheduled to stream live on television via Access Humboldt on November 2, 2020 at 6:00 p.m. Information on the project is available at City Hall for review at the Community Development Department.

Written comments may be submitted to the City Clerk in person at City Hall or by email to cityclerk@ci.fortuna.ca.us by noon on Monday, November 2, 2020. All public comments received by noon will be read into the record (limit to 3 minutes) during the meeting. If your public comments are received after noon on Monday, they may not be read into the record, but will be included in the official minutes.

In compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act, if you need special assistance to participate in this meeting, please contact the Building Department at (707) 725-7600. Notification 48 hours prior to the meeting will enable the City to make reasonable arrangements to ensure accessibility to this meeting (28 CFR 35.102–35.104 ADA Title II).

The FNP provides for the continuity of healthcare to patients, provides instruction and counseling to individuals, families and groups concerning preventive health care; and collaborates with other providers and agencies to assure the provision of coordination of health care delivery to individuals and families. The FNP functions within the scope of practice as authorized for the RN pursuant to Business and Professions Code, Division 2, Chapter 6. The FNP functions within the scope of practice as specified in the Nursing Practice Act and as it applies to all Registered Nurses.

MINIMUM POSITION QUALIFICATIONS REQUIRED:

Education/Knowledge: Graduation from an accredited nursing school; completion of an accredited nurse practitioner program and proof of current California licenses.

SPECIAL SKILLS/EQUIPMENT:

Ability to display professionalism in the work environment; ability to concentrate on details in a busy, distracting environment; ability to solve practical problems and deal effectively with situations where limited standardization exists.

LICENSES/CERTIFICATES:

Must possess valid California license as a registered nurse; California certificate as Nurse Practitioner; furnishing and dispensing number within six months of hire; current CPR certification.

Job Type: Full-time

New hires qualify for benefits as soon as they begin employment!

SHCHD minimum wage start at $15.50 per hour featuring an exceptional benefits package, including an employee discount program for services offered at SHCHD.
